1. BRAND FOUNDATION

The Origin Story

Rivyls was born from a simple observation: traditional fantasy sports are built around individual players, but the soul of sports has always been about the programs, the schools, the teams. The rivalries between Ohio State and Michigan, Alabama and Auburn, Clemson and Notre Dame — these are the stories that define generations of fans. Rivyls captures that energy.

Where other platforms ask you to pick a quarterback or running back, Rivyls asks you to draft entire programs. You become the architect of a sports empire, choosing the schools whose wins power your season. It is a fundamentally different kind of strategy, and a fundamentally different kind of experience.

Mission Statement

> To transform how fans experience competition by putting the power of programs — not just players — in their hands, creating rivalries that feel as real as the ones on the field.

Vision Statement

> To become the global home for program-based fantasy sports — spanning college football, basketball, soccer, cricket, rugby, F1, and beyond — wherever passionate fan bases and fierce rivalries exist.

Core Values

Rivalry is Everything. Competition between fans is what makes sports magical. We amplify that.

Programs Over Players. We believe the institution, the tradition, the program is the deeper story in sports.

Strategy Rewarded. Our platform rewards the fan who studies the landscape, not just star power.

Global by Design. Rivalries are universal. From the SEC to the Premier League to the IPL, we go where the passion is.

Community First. Leagues with friends, bragging rights among coworkers, family traditions — this is social competition.

2. COMPETITIVE LANDSCAPE

Understanding the fantasy sports market is essential to positioning Rivyls. The industry generated over $35 billion globally in 2025, with projections to nearly double by 2030. Over 65 million active players compete in the United States alone, and India leads international growth with 250+ million registered fantasy users. Here is where the major brands stand:

The Big Two: DraftKings & FanDuel

DraftKings Founded 2012. Colors: green, black, orange, white. Crown icon. The market leader in salary-cap DFS and sportsbook. Has expanded aggressively into casino and betting. Brand identity is bold, money-driven, and mainstream. Known for massive prize pools and the Pick6 format. Their visual identity centers on the crowned D icon with a playful-yet-authoritative tone.

FanDuel Founded 2009. Colors: blue, white (shifted from green in 2016 rebrand). Shield icon. Now owned by Flutter Entertainment, FanDuel is the number one U.S. sportsbook by market share. Their 2016 rebrand moved from a script font to a modern shield emblem representing strength and trust. Recently expanded the casino vertical with vibrant purple accents. Brand tone is professional, polished, and reliability-focused.

The Disruptors

Underdog Fantasy Based in Brooklyn, NY. Uses a bold, minimal identity with a dog mascot. Known for Best Ball drafts and Pick-em formats. Their design is modern and clean with excellent mobile UX. Considered the most polished newer app. Rated number one by multiple reviewers for overall experience.

PrizePicks Founded 2018 in Atlanta. Recently rebranded to PrizePicks 2.0 with a simplified logo retaining signature star elements. Focuses on over/under player stat predictions. Available in 31+ states. Brand positioning is simplicity and accessibility. Visual identity is dark, sleek, with gold and star motifs.

Sleeper San Francisco-based. Originally a season-long league hosting platform, now expanding into DFS with Pick-em contests. Known for the best social features in fantasy (chat, reactions, mascots). Deliberately inclusive branding — the name was chosen to be gender-neutral and welcoming. Recently completed a logo refresh for brand consistency as they expanded beyond football. Their business model follows the Fortnite approach: free platform, revenue from cosmetics and mascot purchases.

Betr / Betr Picks Co-founded with Logan Paul. Newest entrant focused on pick-em DFS with up to 100x payouts. Positioned as the most accessible entry point. Expanding into sportsbook and predictions markets.

International Players

Dream11 India. The dominant global fantasy platform by user count (250M+ registered). Cricket-first with expansion into football and kabaddi. Localized, accessible, massive prize pools. Shows the international opportunity for program-based fantasy in cricket and soccer markets.

What They All Have in Common

Every major fantasy platform is built around the same mechanic: you draft individual players and earn points based on individual statistics (passing yards, rebounds, goals scored). Nobody in the market offers program-based fantasy, where you draft entire teams or schools and earn points from wins. This is the white space Rivyls occupies.

Competitive Color Map

Brand	Primary Colors	Visual Tone
DraftKings	Green, Black, Orange	Bold, money-driven, mainstream
FanDuel	Blue, White, Purple (casino)	Professional, trustworthy, polished
Underdog	Red, Dark, Minimal	Modern, clean, design-forward
PrizePicks	Dark, Gold, Stars	Sleek, premium, aspirational
Sleeper	Dark, Vibrant Accents	Social, inclusive, fun
Betr	Red, Black, White	Youthful, accessible, loud
RIVYLS	Navy, Fierce Red, Gold	Competitive, strategic, global

3. BRAND POSITIONING & DIFFERENTIATION

Positioning Statement

> For sports fans who live for the rivalry, Rivyls is the fantasy platform where you draft programs — not players — and earn points from wins. Unlike DraftKings, FanDuel, and every other fantasy app that reduces sports to individual stat lines, Rivyls captures the full power of program pride, school traditions, and the strategic depth of building a winning portfolio of teams.

The Three Pillars of Differentiation

1. Programs, Not Players. Every other platform fragments the sports experience into individual stat lines. Rivyls is the only platform where you own programs. You feel the weight of an Ohio State loss or the thrill of a Cinderella school running the table. The emotional investment mirrors how real fans experience sports — through their teams, not fantasy point totals.

2. Wins Are the Currency. In traditional fantasy, your quarterback can throw three touchdowns and your team still loses because of obscure stat multipliers. In Rivyls, it is beautifully simple: your programs win, you win. This makes every game on every Saturday a moment that matters for your season. The simplicity is the strategy.

3. Built for Every Sport, Every Rivalry. The program-drafting mechanic is universal. College football is the launch point, but the same model works for Premier League clubs, IPL cricket teams, F1 constructors, rugby programs, and NCAA basketball. Rivalries exist in every sport, in every country. Rivyls is designed to go wherever passionate fan bases live.

Target Audience

Primary: The Tribal Fan (Ages 22–45). They wear their school colors on Saturdays. They have group chats that explode during rivalry week. They have opinions about conference realignment. They already play traditional fantasy but wish it felt more connected to the team experience. They value bragging rights over prize money.

Secondary: The Strategic Generalist (Ages 25–50). They follow multiple sports and enjoy the puzzle of prediction. They may play DraftKings or PrizePicks casually but want something with more depth and longer engagement arcs. They appreciate a season-long narrative over daily contests.

Expansion: The Global Sports Fan. Soccer supporters in the UK, cricket fans in India and Australia, rugby fans in New Zealand and South Africa. These audiences have deep program loyalty but are underserved by U.S.-centric fantasy platforms. Rivyls speaks their language.

4. BRAND VOICE & PERSONALITY

The Rivyls voice is the confident friend who knows sports inside and out, talks trash with love, and backs every claim with receipts. We are never corporate, never condescending, and never boring. We speak like fans because we are fans.

Voice Attributes

Competitive but not Hostile. We celebrate rivalry with respect. We talk trash, but we do it with a wink. Think ESPN College GameDay energy, not internet comment section toxicity.

Confident but not Arrogant. We know our product is different and we are not afraid to say so. But we let the experience prove it, not hype alone.

Smart but not Nerdy. We respect the strategy and depth of our platform without drowning users in jargon. We explain complex concepts simply and let users discover the depth.

Inclusive but not Generic. We welcome every kind of sports fan — hardcore and casual, men and women, American and international — without watering down our personality to be inoffensive wallpaper.

Passionate but not Desperate. We are genuinely excited about what we have built and that comes through. But we never beg for attention or over-promise.

Writing Do's and Don'ts

DO	DON'T
"Your programs. Your picks. Your season."	"Utilize our platform to optimize your fantasy experience."
"Saturday just got personal."	"Engage with our cutting-edge fantasy sports solution."
"Draft the programs. Own the rivalry."	"Select from a curated portfolio of athletic programs."
"Georgia just fumbled your lead."	"A negative scoring event has impacted your standings."
"Welcome to Rivyls. Pick a side."	"Thank you for choosing Rivyls. We hope you enjoy..."

5. NAME & TAGLINE

The Name: Rivyls

The name Rivyls is a deliberate respelling of "Rivals" — a word that sits at the emotional core of every sport. The altered spelling accomplishes several things simultaneously:

Instant Recognition. Anyone who sees Rivyls immediately understands the word "rivals." There is no learning curve, no explanation needed. It reads as familiar on first glance.

Unique Brandability. The Y-for-I swap makes it ownable. It cannot be confused with any other brand, it is easily searchable, and the .com domain is available. This is a critical advantage over generic sports terms.

Visual Distinctiveness. The Y creates a visual anchor in the word. When set in a logo, the Y can become an expressive design element — a fork in the road (choose your side), a trophy shape, or a visual nod to the split loyalties that define rivalry.

Phonetic Power. "Rivyls" still sounds punchy and strong when spoken. It has the same rhythmic impact as the original word. In conversation, in podcasts, in ads, it lands with authority.

Cultural Flexibility. The word "rival" translates across cultures and languages. Soccer, cricket, rugby, F1 — every sport understands rivalry. The name scales globally without needing localization.

Tagline Options

The tagline should reinforce the core differentiator (programs, not players) and evoke the emotional charge of rivalry. Here are the primary and alternate options:

PRIMARY TAGLINE

"Draft the Program. Own the Rivalry."

Alternate taglines for different contexts:

Campaign / Hero: "Pick a Side."

Explanatory: "Fantasy Sports, Built on Wins."

Social / Viral: "Saturday Just Got Personal."

App Store: "Draft Programs. Earn Wins. Settle Rivalries."

International: "Every Rivalry. Every Sport. Your Call."

Elevator Pitch: "It’s fantasy sports, but you draft teams, not players."

6. COLOR PALETTE

The Rivyls color palette is designed to stand apart from every competitor in the space. While DraftKings owns green-and-black, FanDuel owns blue, and PrizePicks owns dark-and-gold, Rivyls carves its own territory with a navy-red-gold combination that evokes both collegiate tradition and competitive fire. The palette works in both dark and light UI modes and scales from digital screens to merchandise and print.

Primary Palette

These three colors form the backbone of the Rivyls identity and should appear in every brand touchpoint.

Swatch	Name	Hex Code	Usage
	Deep Navy	#1B2A4A	Primary brand color. Backgrounds, headers, nav bars, trust elements.
	Fierce Red	#E8513D	Accent & CTA color. Buttons, highlights, alerts, active states.
	Championship Gold	#F5A623	Victory & premium. Rankings, achievements, pro features, badges.

Supporting Palette

These colors support the primary palette in UI, backgrounds, text hierarchy, and functional states.

Swatch	Name	Hex Code	Usage
	Ice White	#F7F8FA	Light backgrounds, cards, spacing, clean surfaces.
	Midnight Black	#0D1520	Dark mode base, deep backgrounds, premium surfaces.
	Win Green	#2ECC71	Positive states: wins, gains, streaks, confirmations.
	Slate Gray	#8892A0	Supporting text, captions, disabled states, metadata.

Color Usage Rules

60/30/10 Rule. In any composition, Deep Navy should occupy roughly 60% of the visual weight, Fierce Red about 30%, and Championship Gold is used sparingly at 10% for maximum impact. Gold loses its premium feel when overused.

Dark Mode. Swap Deep Navy for Midnight Black as the base. Fierce Red and Championship Gold retain their vibrancy on dark surfaces. Use Ice White for primary text.

Accessibility. All text-on-background color combinations must meet WCAG AA contrast ratios (4.5:1 for normal text, 3:1 for large text). Fierce Red on white passes. White text on Deep Navy passes. Gold should not be used for body text — only headlines, badges, and decorative elements.

Never. Never place Fierce Red text on Deep Navy backgrounds (insufficient contrast). Never use gradients between red and gold (reads as generic flames). Never alter the hex values; use these exact codes across all materials.

Why This Palette Works

Deep Navy evokes authority and depth, the feeling of a program with 100 years of tradition. Fierce Red brings the heat of competition, the adrenaline of game day, the intensity of rivalry. Championship Gold is the reward, the trophy, the ring. Together they create a visual language that feels both established and alive, traditional and modern. No major competitor uses this combination, giving Rivyls clear visual territory in the market.

7. TYPOGRAPHY

Typography is one of the most powerful tools for establishing brand personality. The Rivyls type system uses a deliberate contrast between a bold, angular display font for impact and a clean, readable sans-serif for communication.

Primary Display Font: Montserrat

Montserrat is a geometric sans-serif with strong, confident letterforms. It was designed by Julieta Ulanovsky and is freely available through Google Fonts, making it accessible for both internal use and development. Montserrat works exceptionally well in all-caps treatments for headlines and has the visual weight to command attention without feeling aggressive or overly decorative.

Use for: Logo wordmark, headlines, section titles, navigation, hero text, marketing headlines, splash screens, feature callouts.

Weights: Bold (700) and ExtraBold (800) for headlines. SemiBold (600) for subheadlines and navigation. Regular (400) should be avoided for display use — Montserrat shines when given visual weight.

Secondary Body Font: Inter

Inter is one of the most widely used UI fonts in modern product design, created specifically for screen readability. It has an exceptionally large x-height, open apertures, and careful spacing that makes it legible at even small sizes. Inter is the workhorse of the Rivyls type system.

Use for: Body copy, UI elements, buttons, form fields, descriptions, notifications, app content, long-form text, tooltips, metadata.

Weights: Regular (400) for body text. Medium (500) for labels and buttons. SemiBold (600) for emphasis within body text. Bold (700) sparingly for inline emphasis.

Type Hierarchy

Element	Font	Weight / Size	Usage
Hero / H1	Montserrat	ExtraBold / 48–64px	Landing pages, splash screens
Section Title / H2	Montserrat	Bold / 32–40px	Page sections, card headers
Subheading / H3	Montserrat	SemiBold / 24–28px	Subsections, feature titles
Body Large	Inter	Regular / 18px	Intro paragraphs, key messaging
Body	Inter	Regular / 16px	Standard content, descriptions
Body Small	Inter	Regular / 14px	Supporting info, metadata
Caption	Inter	Medium / 12px	Labels, timestamps, tooltips
Button	Inter	SemiBold / 14–16px	CTAs, interactive elements
Navigation	Montserrat	SemiBold / 14px	Menu items, tab bars

Typography Rules

All-Caps for Display Only. Montserrat in all-caps is the brand signature for headlines and short phrases. Never use all-caps for body text or long passages.

Line Height. Body text: 1.5x line height for readability. Headlines: 1.1–1.2x for tightness and impact.

Letter Spacing. Add 2–4% tracking to all-caps Montserrat headlines. Use default tracking for Inter body text. Never add tracking to lowercase body text.

Fallback Stack. Montserrat → Arial → Helvetica → sans-serif. Inter → -apple-system → BlinkMacSystemFont → Segoe UI → sans-serif.

Why These Fonts

Montserrat brings the confidence and visual authority that a sports brand demands. It looks at home on a stadium scoreboard, an app splash screen, and a billboard. Inter handles the heavy lifting of making the product usable, readable, and accessible across devices. Both are free, open-source Google Fonts, keeping licensing costs at zero while maintaining professional quality. This pairing avoids the common trap of sports brands choosing overly aggressive display fonts that alienate casual fans.

8. LOGO GUIDELINES

The Rivyls logo has not yet been finalized, but the following guidelines establish the principles and constraints that should govern its design and usage. These rules apply regardless of which designer or agency creates the final mark.

Logo Construction Principles

The Wordmark is the Anchor. "RIVYLS" in Montserrat ExtraBold, all-caps, should be the primary logo format. The letterforms themselves carry enough weight and personality to stand alone. A wordmark-first approach mirrors successful modern sports brands (think UNDERDOG, SLEEPER) and ensures legibility at all sizes.

The Y as a Design Element. The Y in Rivyls is the visual differentiator. In logo exploration, consider treatments where the Y is emphasized — subtly different weight, color accent, or a small design element integrated into or around it. The Y can evoke a fork (choose your side), a trophy silhouette, or converging paths (two rivals meeting). Do not overdesign this; subtlety is more powerful than novelty.

Icon / App Mark. Develop a standalone icon for app stores, favicons, and social media profile images. Options include: the letter R with a stylized element, a shield containing the R, or an abstract mark derived from the Y shape. The icon must be recognizable at 16x16 pixels and impactful at 512x512.

Logo Versions

Primary: Full wordmark "RIVYLS" in Deep Navy on white or light backgrounds.

Reversed: Full wordmark in white on Deep Navy or Midnight Black backgrounds.

Accent: Full wordmark in Deep Navy with the Y highlighted in Fierce Red. Use sparingly for hero moments.

Icon Only: Standalone mark for constrained spaces (app icon, favicon, social avatar).

Lockup: Wordmark + tagline stacked or side-by-side for marketing materials. Minimum size 200px width for the lockup.

Clear Space & Minimum Size

Maintain a clear space around the logo equal to the height of the letter R on all sides. No other text, images, or design elements should encroach on this zone. The minimum width for the full wordmark is 80px in digital and 1 inch in print. Below this size, use the icon-only version.

Logo Misuse

Do not stretch, compress, rotate, or skew the logo. Do not change the font. Do not apply drop shadows, glows, or 3D effects. Do not place the logo on busy photographic backgrounds without a solid or semi-transparent overlay. Do not redraw or recreate the logo in any other typeface. Do not add outlines or strokes. Do not place the Fierce Red accent version on red or orange backgrounds.

9. VISUAL IDENTITY SYSTEM

Photography & Imagery Style

Rivyls imagery should feel alive, in-the-moment, and emotionally charged. We show the human side of competition: students in face paint, fans hugging after a last-second win, the tension of a packed stadium before kickoff. We avoid sterile stock photography, staged shots, and generic athletes against white backgrounds.

Primary Subjects: Stadium atmosphere, fan reactions, campus culture, scoreboard moments, tailgate scenes, game-day energy. The focus is on the experience of sports, not just the athletes.

Color Treatment: Imagery should be slightly desaturated and then overlaid with a navy tint or branded color wash when used as backgrounds. This maintains the brand palette even when using photography. For hero images, a gradient overlay from Deep Navy (left) to transparent (right) creates a cinematic branded frame.

Avoid: Individual player hero shots (this contradicts our program-first positioning). Corporate handshake images. Clip art. Overly filtered or vintage-look photography. Any imagery that could be mistaken for a DraftKings or FanDuel ad.

Patterns & Textures

Rivyls uses a subtle diagonal stripe pattern (inspired by varsity and athletic aesthetics) as a background texture. The stripes use Deep Navy at 5–10% opacity on light surfaces, or 10–15% lighter than the base on dark surfaces. This pattern adds visual interest without competing with content and nods to the athletic tradition that underpins the brand.

A secondary pattern option is a geometric grid inspired by bracket structures and tournament charts. This can be used for background textures in marketing materials and loading screens.

Iconography

Rivyls icons should be clean, geometric, and consistent in stroke weight (2px at standard size). The icon style is modern outlined — not filled, not hand-drawn, not overly rounded. Icons should feel at home alongside Inter body text and Montserrat headlines. Use Fierce Red for active/selected icon states and Slate Gray for inactive states. Consider developing custom sport-specific icons (football, basketball, soccer ball, cricket bat, F1 helmet, rugby ball) in the brand style for use across the platform.

Data Visualization

As a fantasy sports platform, Rivyls will display significant amounts of data: scores, standings, trends, matchups. All charts and data visualizations should use the brand color palette with Deep Navy for primary data series, Fierce Red for highlighted or comparative data, Championship Gold for top performers or leaders, and Win Green for positive trends. Keep visualizations clean and readable. Avoid chart junk, 3D effects, and unnecessary animation. Let the data breathe.

10. DIGITAL & UI GUIDELINES

Design System Principles

Clarity First. Every screen should answer three questions immediately: Where am I? What can I do? What just happened? Rivyls deals with complex information (rosters, schedules, scores, standings) and the design must make this complexity feel manageable.

Emotion Built In. Unlike productivity apps, Rivyls is entertainment. Design should celebrate wins, dramatize close matchups, and make losses sting just enough to drive re-engagement. Motion, color changes, and contextual animations matter.

Mobile-Native. 80%+ of fantasy sports interaction happens on mobile. Design for phones first, tablets second, desktop third. Every interaction should be thumb-friendly.

Key UI Components

Primary Buttons: Fierce Red background, white text, Inter SemiBold 14px, 8px border radius, subtle shadow. Hover/press state: darken 10%.

Secondary Buttons: Deep Navy outline, Deep Navy text, transparent fill. Hover: fill with Navy at 10% opacity.

Cards: White surface (light mode) or #1A2235 surface (dark mode), 12px border radius, subtle shadow (0 2px 8px rgba(0,0,0,0.08)), 16px internal padding.

Navigation: Bottom tab bar on mobile (5 items max). Deep Navy background, Slate Gray inactive icons, Fierce Red active icon with label. Montserrat SemiBold 10px labels.

Score Updates: Use Win Green for gains, Fierce Red for losses, Championship Gold for leader/first place. Animate score changes with a brief pulse or count-up effect.

Dark Mode

Dark mode is not optional — it is likely to be the preferred mode for most users (following the pattern of Sleeper, PrizePicks, and Underdog, which all default to dark interfaces). Use Midnight Black (#0D1520) as the base, with surface layers at #1A2235 and #243044 for depth. Text: white for primary, #8892A0 (Slate Gray) for secondary. Fierce Red and Championship Gold maintain their vibrancy on dark surfaces.

Social Media Templates

All social media templates should follow a consistent structure: branded header bar (Deep Navy + logo), content area with the diagonal stripe pattern at low opacity, and a Fierce Red accent bar or element to draw the eye. Instagram posts use a 1:1 square format. Stories and TikTok use 9:16. Twitter/X cards use 16:9. Always include the wordmark or icon and the URL (rivyls.com) on every piece of social content.

11. BRAND STORY FRAMEWORK

Using the StoryBrand framework (developed by Donald Miller), the Rivyls brand narrative positions the user as the hero and Rivyls as the guide. This framework should inform all marketing copy, onboarding flows, and brand communications.

The StoryBrand 7-Part Framework for Rivyls

1. The Character (Hero): The Sports Fan

The hero is a passionate sports fan who loves the programs, the traditions, and the rivalries. They already watch every game. They already argue about which schools are overrated. They already live for Saturday in the fall. They want a way to put their knowledge to the test and prove they know sports better than their friends.

2. Has a Problem: Fantasy Sports Feels Wrong

External Problem: Traditional fantasy is about individual players, not teams. It fragments the sports experience into stat lines.

Internal Problem: "I know more about college football programs than anyone in my friend group, but no fantasy platform lets me prove it."

Philosophical Problem: Fantasy sports should capture the spirit of competition between programs and fan bases, not reduce sports to a spreadsheet of individual statistics.

3. Meets a Guide: Rivyls

Empathy: "We get it. You don't just follow players — you follow programs. You care about the rivalry, the tradition, the whole game."

Authority: Built by fans who have been running program-based fantasy leagues for years, refined through thousands of users and hundreds of leagues. Rivyls knows how to make this work.

4. Gives Them a Plan: Three Steps

Step 1: Draft Your Programs. Pick the schools you believe in through our snake draft or auction format.

Step 2: Earn Wins All Season. Every time your programs win on game day, you score points. Make add/drop moves to stay competitive.

Step 3: Settle the Rivalry. Climb the leaderboard, talk trash in your league, and prove you know sports better than anyone.

5. Calls Them to Action: Direct & Transitional CTAs

Direct CTA: "Start Your Draft" / "Create a League" / "Pick a Side"

Transitional CTA: "See How It Works" / "Watch a Draft" / "Explore the Platform"

6. Helps Them Avoid Failure: The Stakes

Without Rivyls, you are stuck playing the same individual-player fantasy games that everyone else plays. Your knowledge of programs and rivalries goes untested. Game days feel less meaningful because you have no personal stake beyond watching. Your bragging rights remain unearned.

7. And Ends in Success: The Transformation

With Rivyls, every game on every Saturday matters. You have skin in the game for programs you drafted. Your expertise is quantified and ranked. You have earned the bragging rights. You are the commissioner, the general manager, the fan who called it. Your league becomes a ritual, your draft becomes an event, and your rivalries become personal.

12. BRAND APPLICATION EXAMPLES

The following examples illustrate how Rivyls brand elements should come together across real-world touchpoints. These are guidelines, not rigid templates — creative execution should feel alive and contextual while staying within the brand system.

Website Landing Page

The following section presents four color palette directions explored during the brand development process. Each palette is presented with its full color system, rationale, strengths, and trade-offs. The current recommendation remains Option A (Collegiate Fire), but these alternatives are documented here for reference, future exploration, or sub-brand applications. Three palettes are dark-focused (A, C, E) and one is light-focused (H).

DARK-FOCUSED PALETTES

OPTION A — COLLEGIATE FIRE ★ CURRENT RECOMMENDATION

Navy / Red-Orange / Gold

The current brand book recommendation. Deep Navy carries trust and tradition, Fierce Red drives action and competitive energy, Championship Gold rewards victory. This combination owns unique territory — no major competitor uses it — and it bridges the gap between collegiate heritage and modern sports tech.

Swatch	Name	Hex Code	Role
	Deep Navy	#1B2A4A	Primary brand color. Backgrounds, headers, nav bars.
	Fierce Red	#E8513D	Accent & CTA color. Buttons, highlights, active states.
	Championship Gold	#F5A623	Victory & premium. Rankings, achievements, badges.
	Ice White	#F7F8FA	Light backgrounds, cards, clean surfaces.
	Midnight	#0D1520	Dark mode base, deep backgrounds.

Strengths: Unique in market (no competitor uses navy/red/gold). Strong collegiate DNA. Excellent dark mode contrast. Scales globally across all sports and cultures.

Trade-offs: None significant — this remains the strongest overall option.

OPTION C — HERITAGE FIELD

Forest / Copper / Cream

A warm, earthy palette that evokes tradition, legacy, and the tactile feel of old-school sports. Forest green grounds the brand in athletic heritage, copper brings warmth and a premium patina, and cream keeps surfaces clean without the sterility of white. Feels timeless and distinguished — like a leather-bound playbook.

Swatch	Name	Hex Code	Role
	Forest	#1A3C2A	Primary brand color. Deep backgrounds, nav bars.
	Copper	#C47A3A	Accent & CTA. Buttons, highlights, warmth.
	Cream	#F2E8D5	Light surfaces, cards, open space.
	Deep Pine	#0E2218	Dark mode base.
	Brass	#D4A23A	Premium accents, achievements.

Strengths: Premium and timeless feel. Warm, community-friendly personality. Feels established rather than startup-y.

Trade-offs: DraftKings already owns green territory. Lower competitive energy than other options.

OPTION E — ROYAL GAMBIT

Deep Purple / Amber / Off-White

Regal, strategic, and quietly powerful. Deep purple carries connotations of royalty, ambition, and premium quality — it is underused in fantasy sports. Amber provides warmth and energy without being aggressive, and off-white surfaces keep the brand feeling open and inviting. Positions Rivyls as the thinking person's fantasy platform.

Swatch	Name	Hex Code	Role
	Royal Purple	#2A1A3E	Primary brand color. Deep backgrounds, authority.
	Amber	#F59E0B	Accent & CTA. Energy, warmth, action.
	Parchment	#FAF5EE	Light surfaces, breathing room.
	Deep Crown	#1A0F28	Dark mode base.
	Rose Fire	#E74C6F	Secondary accent for alerts, losses.

Strengths: Regal and premium. Purple is wide-open territory in fantasy sports. Sophisticated and unique.

Trade-offs: FanDuel Casino uses purple for its sub-brand. Could read luxury/fashion over athletics.

LIGHT-FOCUSED PALETTE

OPTION H — WARM KICKOFF

Warm White / Slate Blue / Burnt Orange

Warm, inviting, and distinctly sporty without being aggressive. The warm off-white base feels human and friendly — like a campus quad on a fall Saturday — instead of the clinical white of tech products. Slate blue provides depth and trust without the heaviness of pure navy, while burnt orange brings the heat of competition and fall football energy. This palette excels at making the platform feel like a social experience with friends, not a data terminal. The unique warm tone is virtually untouched in the fantasy sports space.

Swatch	Name	Hex Code	Role
	Warm Linen	#FAF7F2	Primary background. Warm, inviting surfaces.
	Slate Blue	#3D5A80	Brand anchor. Text, headers, depth.
	Burnt Orange	#E07A3A	Accent & CTA. Competition, fall energy.
	Sand	#F0EBE1	Secondary surface. Cards, subtle warmth.
	Deep Slate	#2C3E50	Dark mode base, deep text.

Strengths: Completely unique in fantasy sports — no competitor uses warm tones. Feels like a fall Saturday on campus. Social-first, community-friendly energy.

Trade-offs: Softer competitive energy than dark options. Would need a strong dark mode variant for nighttime use.

Palette Comparison Summary

Option	Direction	Feel	Best For
A ★	Collegiate Fire	Tradition + competition	Overall brand identity (recommended)
C	Heritage Field	Warm, premium, legacy	Sub-brand or merch line
E	Royal Gambit	Regal, strategic	Premium tier or pro features
H	Warm Kickoff	Friendly, campus feel	Community features, social campaigns

Note: These palettes are not mutually exclusive. The primary brand identity should use a single consistent palette (recommendation: Option A), but alternate palettes can be explored for sub-brands, seasonal campaigns, specific sport verticals, or premium tier features. Any alternate usage should be documented and approved to maintain brand coherence.
